Stetson, Aug 14, 1877.

District Court of the United States, District of Maine.
In the matter of JOHN P. SAFFORD, Bankrupt.
IN BANKRUPTCY.
This is to give notice that a petition has been presented to the Court, this 18th day of July, by John P. Safford, of Lexington, a Bankrupt, individually and as a member of the firm of J. F. & E. F. Safford, praying that he may be decreed to have a full discharge from all his debts, individual and copartnership, provable under the Bankrupt Act, and upon reading said Petition,
It is ordered by the Court that a hearing be had upon the same, on the first Monday of November, A. D. 1877, before the Court in Portland, in said District, at 10 o'clock A. M., and that the second meeting of the creditors of said Bankrupt, be held before Chas. Hamlin, Esq., Register, on the 7th day of August, 1877, and the third meeting of the same on the 7th day of August, 1877, and that notice thereof be published in the Bangor Daily Whig and Courier and the Somerset Reporter, newspapers printed in said District, once a week for three successive weeks, and once in the weekly Bangor Courier, the last publication to be thirty days at least before the day of hearing, and that all creditors who have proved their debts and other persons in interest, may appear at said time and place, and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.
WM. P. PREBLE, Clerk of District Court for said District.

Eastport has got the railroad fever. Every business man has signed a paper pledging his support to the enterprise of building a narrow gauge to connect with the St. Croix and Penobscot. The leaders of the movement are confident of success in obtaining the necessary stock subscriptions. The plan is to connect at Baring as the most feasible point, thus avoiding Calais. If however, a road is extended from Calais to Bog Brook, a connection will be made at that point.

Jeremiah Hobson, one of Saco's most active lumbermen, died Saturday, aged 79 years.

A party of Sacramentans returned home last evening from a trip to the mountains, bringing with them two deer skins, one wild catskin and a few other trophies, including two tarantulas—dead ones. They had a little incident attending the transportation of these specimens which occasioned considerable alarm as they were returning home. The tarantulas, for lack of a better receptacle, were enclosed in a cigar box when caught about ten days ago, and this box, carefully tied up, was deposited beneath the seat of the vehicle. While they were jolting through the canyon the seat slipped and the two men occupying it found themselves dropped suddenly into the bottom of the wagon. One of them struck the cigar box, crushed it, and immediately felt that something had bit him. A glance showed him that he was resting on the tarantulas, and with a yell of "I'm stung! I'm stung!" he jumped from the wagon, and, dashing his hands behind him, he bounced wildly along the road, then turned and made for the wagon, shouting to his amazed and greatly alarmed companions, "Whisky! Quick! I'm dying! Why don't you hurry!" The other three men—there were four in the party—reached simultaneously for the demijohn, broke off the cork in their haste to pull it out, and in an effort to knock off the neck of the demijohn, to give vent, broke the entire concern and nearly all the contents were lost. About a pint of the liquid was saved, however, and without as much as saying, "Here's luck," the person who was bitten swallowed it. Soon he began to feel better and eventually felt so remarkably well that it was voted at the poison hall been forced to succumb. Then the work of straightening up the contents of the wagon was commenced, and the tarantula box was carefully listed out and examined when behold! the "bugs" were found perfectly [illegible] and still that it was evident that they had been dead more than twenty-four hours, while two tacks in the broken box [illegible] The box conveyed [illegible] good [illegible] cause of the injury which the old [illegible] hunter had to [illegible]

GOVERNOR CONNOR'S ACCEPTANCE

We print elsewhere the notification by the special committee of the Republican State Convention and Gov Connor's reply accepting the nomination unanimously tendered him. It is like all of Gov Connor's utterances, clear, emphatic, and direct. He finds in the Declaration of Principles adopted the fundamental tenets of the great Republican Party and there is nothing in the Platform which needs interpreting or explaining away. He pledges himself to those principles for which he fought, which were the grounds of death, to which he has adhered in war and in peace, the close of the war, and is a worthy representative of which he has twice been chosen to fill the highest office in the gift of the people of Maine, and is now a third time called to carry forward the Republican banner to victory.

Our honored Governor's words in response to the summons of the State Convention and his letter will be read with the warmest gratification by the Republicans of Maine who are now rallying for a grand triumph on the 10th day of September.

TEXT AND SERMON

The Chicago Inter Ocean takes these words of President Hayes as a text:

"We do believe that all good people everywhere desire [illegible] that the laws are to be obeyed and that the rights of each and every citizen should be respected, whatever his race or color."

And then it thus preaches the sermon:

Doubtless this is true, but if true, where are the good people in the South to compel the observance of these rights? Let us have high and sweet sounding phrases, but only for a moment, and come down to solid facts.

Since the policy of triumphing by love has been inaugurated Weeder has been killed in Louisiana for being a Republican. Since the good men there expressed their regard for everybody's rights a Republican senator has been shot and a colored postmaster prevented by force from assuming the duties of his office.

Since the era of love was inaugurated the Chisolm family have been assassinated in Mississippi—a political massacre exceeding in cold blooded atrocity any crime known to our annals.

To-day with the policy of conciliation in full force, a United States Senator is practically a fugitive from that State, and will return to his home only at the risk of his life.

Watching with beating hearts the effect of the let-alone policy in Georgia, we see a convention repealing all the safeguards adopted under a Republican regime and the leader of the convention publicly declaring that the colored vote must and shall be wiped out, or controlled absolutely by the Democracy.

Turning to South Carolina we behold dozens of Republican Representatives driven out of the Legislature and their places supplied by Democrats, while the promise made to maintain the schools there for the education of the blacks is being shamefully violated.

We admit that the lion seems peaceful at present, but is it not because he is glutted with his favorite dishes, and has nothing on earth to fight? A lion that wouldn't be peaceful under such circumstances would be a very unreasonable animal indeed.

We mention these things, not so much to show the President his mistake, as to warn him about being too sanguine as to the results of his policy. It would doubtless be a very excellent thing to have all the people good and have them all believing alike. Possibly it may be a very bad thing to go on striving to maintain intact the party of Lincoln, but we fancy a worse thing would be to wake up some fine morning and discover that the scheme of blessed unity had proven a failure, and that the Democratic party, retaining still that ambitious spirit which parties are liable to possess, had come in through the unguarded door and occupied the land.

The Commercial states, on the authority of a private letter from "one of the most popular, prominent and influential Democrats in York, that the Democrats of that county are dissatisfied with Mr. Williams' indorsement of the Electoral Commission, and will probably cast their votes for Gen. S. J. Anderson, of Portland."

GOVERNOR CONNOR'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE

THE NOTIFICATION

Gen Selden Connor

DEAR SIR—We have the honor to inform you that at the Republican State Convention, this day held, you were unanimously renominated as the Republican candidate for Governor for the year ensuing. It is with much pleasure that in pursuance of instructions of the Convention we communicate the same to you and request your acceptance of the nomination.

We enclose a copy of the Resolutions adopted by the Convention.

With sentiments of the highest respect, we have the honor to remain

Your obedient servants,

JOSIAH CROSBY,
FREDERICK ROBIE, } Committee
THOMAS W. HYDE

Augusta, Aug. 9, 1877.

THE LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE

AUGUSTA, Aug 25 1877

GENTLEMEN—I am in receipt of your communication informing me that I was renominated by the Republican State Convention held on the 9th instant, as the Republican candidate for Governor for the ensuing year, and requesting my acceptance of the nomination.

The unanimity which attended the nomination, as I am assured by you and by a report of the Convention, is exceedingly gratifying to me. I regard it as the strongest evidence of satisfaction with the manner in which I have observed the trust twice confided to me by the people of Maine, and I commit to the presentation of my name for their suffrages by the Convention you represent, with the hope and with the purpose to receive the continuance of their valued approval if they shall again entrust to me the high office I hold by their votes.

The political opinions I entertain are in thorough accord with the declaration of principles as it was made by the Convention. I find in that declaration reaffirmed the tenets which have been the strong principles consistently adhered to by the Republican party of the State and Nation, and are so well illustrated by its achievements and, in reference to particular events of recent occurrence—the political consolidation of the South, the refusal of appropriations for the army by the Democratic House of Representatives, and the President's declaration—I forcibly call attention to the dangerous tendencies in the opposition party threatening civil liberty and constitutional government.

The doctrine maintained to so great an extent in that party to impugn the title of President Hayes and Vice President Wheeler is specially noteworthy and is a sign that which should be heeded by all patriotic citizens. The result of the Presidential election was in accord and declared in a manner which superseded the obligations of good faith to the sanction of the constitution and the law, and all who refuse to accept its authoritative mark the instigators and disturbers of the public peace.

It is with no exception that the political organization which has so ably and well conducted the country through a long period of uncommon peril and difficulty, must now be blessed to uphold the established principles of true theory of our government, for the security of the political rights of every citizen, and for the promotion of all the material and industrial interests of the people.

I cordially reciprocate the sentiments of respect which you are pleased to express, and remain

Your obedient servant,

SELDEN CONNOR.

JOSIAH CROSBY,
FREDERICK ROBIE, } Committee.

PILLSBURY'S MASTERLY STRATEGY

HOW WILLIAMS CAME TO BE NOMINATED

We have not often found the matter of the Argus of sufficient interest to copy. It is usually devoted itself to denunciatory statements about the affairs of the Republican party which have so invariably proved so ganzy as to prove only follies. But when the editor of that paper, as the leader of a determined wing of the Democratic party in their recent State Convention undertakes to discuss the recent nomination of the proceedings there, he treats of a subject on which he ought to be well informed and his statements become interesting. In this view we copy from Tuesday evening's Commercial the following account of the manner in which the nomination of Williams was brought about:

The question How was the nomination of William brought about? Portland is full of the question of Democrats in Maine every day. Well, no wonder that the inquiry is made, and that expressions of surprise should be uttered that a man should be made a Democratic nominee for Governor who declares in his letter of acceptance that he has had no connection with the Democratic party for twenty years, and who insults that party by an impudent misinterpretation of their platform and by a bold affirmation that Hayes' title to the Presidency is valid.

The Democratic masses of Maine who were not present at the Portland Convention are entitled to a frank statement of the means and methods by which this most extraordinary nomination was effected and they shall have it.

It is altogether improbable that not one in ten of the delegates when they left their homes for Portland had ever dreamed of Mr Williams as a possible candidate. Not one in ten of the delegates had ever known or heard of him as a Democrat for twenty years. And it is entirely safe to say that had Mr Williams himself been in the Convention and then and there given his interpretation of the second resolution of the platform, as put forth in his letter of acceptance, he could not have received one-twentieth part of the votes of the delegates.

How then was his nomination effected? It was thus: So long ago as 1870, there was a conspiracy formed to disband and dissolve the Democratic party of Maine, to the end that there might be a People's party formed out of the disorganized Democracy and certain discontented elements of the Republican party, with Gen Chamberlain at its head. The conspiracy came well nigh having a successful issue so far as the dissolution of the Democratic party was concerned. The Democratic State Convention for that year was holden in Portland. The motion of the conspirators was to dissolve the Convention sine die without a nomination. Plausible arguments were urged in its favor. The true Democratic delegates resisted the consummation of the Conspiracy. The struggle was severe and lasted through the entire day. Under the lead of the gallant Gen Roberts, of this city, the conspirators were routed, and an adjournment of the Convention to Bangor was secured. The conspiracy aroused the indignation of the masses of the party and when the Convention reconvened in Norombega Hall a month later, there were no vacant seats. The conspirators were abashed in that presence, and the proposal to disband did not find an utterance from even a single throat. As a reward for his gallant and timely service in rescuing the Democracy from dissolution, the Convention with one voice demanded that General Roberts should take the standard and bear it through the campaign. He obeyed the summons, and well nigh planted it on the very parapet of the enemy's works.

The Augusta clique who were at the head of the conspiracy of 1870, were again at Portland this year. They did not dare to propose open disbandment; but they sought to effect their purpose by another scheme. They had resolved to Hayesize the party, in other words, to deliver it over, soul and body, to the Great Fraud.

Mr. Pillsbury, the Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and his clique were most earnest and persistent in advocating the nomination of Mr. Williams. They vouched for his Democracy as thorough and genuine. They collared and button holed delegates singly and by scores, and told them of the most accurate knowledge they had of a great mass Hayes Convention that would be holden on the 29th of August which would certainly either adopt Mr Williams, if nominated by the Democracy or would nominate Gen Chamberlain! Either course, they maintained, would result in the certain election of William.

In a word, a majority of the delegates were impressed with the idea that Williams was a good enough Democrat, and that his nomination would secure for the Democratic ticket the support, direct or indirect, of thousands upon thousands of Hayes Republicans.

Such were the means and such were the influences and representations that effected the nomination of Joseph H Williams, a Republican of twenty years standing, by the Democratic State Convention at Portland. Naturally enough Democrats were anxious for success, and being without sufficient time to weigh and consider the pros and cons of [illegible] to-day their only hope is the reward that ever attends folly.

Where now are the glittering inducements by which Mr Williams' nomination was imposed upon the late Democratic State Convention? Where now is the most formidable break which his candidacy was to make in the ranks of the Republican party? What compensation have the Democracy now for the most humiliating and stultified attitude in which they have been placed by their candidate's letter of acceptance?

We ask Democrats of the respective counties and towns of the State to look about them and put their fingers upon the Hayes Republicans who propose to vote for Mr Williams or Gen. Chamberlain. We undertake to say that there are not two [illegible] of them in the whole State. Bangor gave Hayes nearly 2000 votes last November. There are not five of the whole number that will be given to Williams one week from next Monday. We have yet to learn of the first Republican who voted for Hayes in Bangor last November, who proposes to vote for Williams on the tenth of September. If there are any in other cities and towns we should like to hear of them. All evidently do not exist in the Hayes [illegible]

THE SOUTHERN RESPONSE TO KEY

[From the Atlanta Ga Herald]

Postmaster-General Key was a Colonel in the Confederate Army, fought bravely, was a Democrat, claims to be one yet and voted for Tilden. In New England as a Southern man, he identifies himself and the people he pretends to represent, Mr Hayes and the rest at Rockville for his presence among them and Mr. Key's apology and making about erring brothers of the South and repentant sinners. We really wish he would stop all this flunkeyism and misrepresentation of our people. The Southern people do not feel they have erred, neither do they repent. They are proud of their record, and regret nothing. [illegible] to fight for the rights and have never [illegible] Mr Hayes was forced to adopt Democratic policy [illegible] from State Houses. They will keep their plighted word and uphold [illegible] as long as any portion of the land. They do not accept all truckling sentiments of Mr Key when in the North nor their glory in the past, and hope to make the future worthy of it.

[From the Raleigh (N. C.) Observer.]

The whole performance [illegible] to the last degree humiliating and mortifying, we confess it. If the Southern people were pardoned who owe their lives and what remnants of property they possess to the clemency and magnanimity of the Federal Government, then indeed we have done that Government, and the portion of the American people it represented, great wrong. If we were criminals and they patriots, then indeed Mr Key does well to exhibit himself daily and nightly before the Northern people as a living demon, tried, ... then, indeed, he do right to declare that Mr Hayes has put us on our good behavior. But if we are not in that degraded position then Mr Key is wrong, and needlessly humiliates them, all and the section from which he comes, by the attitude in which he has placed himself before the Northern public.

PRESIDENT GRANT AND LOUISIANA

[From the Inter-Ocean.]

It has been asserted quite often of late that General Grant was inclined to recognize Nicholls in Louisiana, and that he was only prevented from doing so by the objections of certain members of his Cabinet. In examining these reports the other day we were shown an interview with William P. Kellogg published in the National Republican March 3, just before the return of the Louisiana Commission, which shows some light on the subject. The reporter asked Mr Kellogg why President Grant did not recognize Packard and received the following reply:

"At the time Packard was inaugurated General Grant telegraphed me that he preferred to await the report of the Congressional committee then in Louisiana investigating the election contest in the election. Before the committee made their report the electoral [illegible] the Electoral Commission passed Congress. A few days before the commission decided to count the vote of Louisiana for Hayes General Grant told me that if the tribunal did decide to count Louisiana for Hayes he would recognize Packard. He said he did not see how he could do otherwise. Soon after the decision I called upon him with Congressman Darrell when he said, much to my surprise, that he had good reasons to believe that Packard would not be sustained by Hayes. I then found that President Grant was disinclined to recognize Packard during his administration, evidently believing he would thus have to bear whatever odium might attach to that act, while it would be of no lasting benefit to Packard."

We may add to the above that other facts which have come to light show that Grant refrained from recognizing Packard solely for the reason that his doing so would be forestalling the incoming administration, and subject him to unnecessary blame from those who had determined upon a different course.

How is this? Local self government restored; Carpet-bag Rule Overthrown! The blessings of good government secured! The dawn of a new era of prosperity—these and sundry similar phrases have profusely ornamented the Boston Journal's eulogies of the "new Southern policy," and how comes its Washington "special" with the statement:

Private advices from New Orleans show that notwithstanding the change in the State administration the income of Louisiana for the first six months of the current year has fallen off nearly 25 per cent while the payments were in excess half a million.

The Argus knows the value of a good endorsement, even if the endorsement is rather old. It quotes with great delight and approbation Mr. Blaine's complimentary words about Mr. Williams, written twenty years ago. Isn't it rather hard on the overburdened faithful Democracy, after they have but just recovered from the shock of having Mr. Blaine nominate their candidate for Governor, to give occasion to the horrible suspicion that Blaine is a favorite at the Argus office too?—Portland Press.

HARRISON'S PERISTALTIC LOZENGES. A POSITIVE CURE FOR Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Piles, Oppression after Eating, Headache, Dizziness. For thirty years these Lozenges have retained the confidence of the Medical Profession and the public generally, in spite of all competitors or imitators. They are the most effectual remedy for HABITUAL COSTIVENESS and its results, viz Piles, Indigestion, Headache, Dizziness, Languor, Oppression of Food, Heartburn, Flatulence, Bad Taste in the mouth, Torpid Liver, &c. &c. Females who cannot endure strong purgatives find these Lozenges admirably suited to the many complaints incident to their sex, by restoring nature and preventing periodical pains and obstructions. They are also just the thing for children suffering with worms, being a sure cure, and as agreeable to take as the most pleasant confection. Travellers find the Lozenges just what they need as they are so compact and inodorous that they may be carried in the vest pocket, and as an aperient or laxative they are unequalled.

Testimony of a Boston Merchant. BOSTON, May 10, 1865. This certifies that I have used Dr Harrison's PERISTALTIC LOZENGES, and, after suffering a long time with the Piles I experienced an entire cure, and recommend their use to all afflicted in the same way, without reserve, or especially if attended with any constipation. [illegible] FORBES

From the General Ticket Agent of Montreal and Boston Air Line Railroad. LYNDONVILLE, Vt., March 29th, 1877. Messrs. E. S. HARRISON & Co. Gents.—The business of the line having increased very much, I am obliged to confine myself very closely to office work, and have in consequence been much troubled with constipation. I find in your Lozenges just what I need, not a strong purgative, but an efficient help to nature. N. P. LOVERING, Jr.

TENNESSEE

A New Method with Illicit Distillers

MEMPHIS, Aug 28 For several years the Revenue officers have had great trouble in trying to break up illicit distilling in Henry County Tenn. Saturday the better portion of the citizens gave a grand barbecue 15 miles north of Paris to which all moonshiners were invited and also U S Senator Harris, Representative Atkins, Collector Patterson and Marshal Waldron. Senator Harris made a lengthy speech to the moonshiners, showing them the disgrace brought upon the State by their course, and that vigorous measures would be enforced to put a stop to the illicit work. Finally an agreement was made that all would come into Paris within two weeks, surrender their stills, etc., and give bond for their appearance at the next term of the U S Court.

A special to the London Standard from Pesth announces that the Bosnian insurgents have again been totally defeated near Czerny Potok and driven over the Austrian frontier.

Rather Doubtful

The Post's Berlin correspondent telegraphs that he received a special telegram from the Danube announcing that the highest personages at the Russian head quarters have expressed earnest desire for peace on the condition that the protection of Christians is guaranteed and the reforms promised by the Porte carried out. The Post is a notoriously Turcophile paper and the foregoing, moreover, is a direct contradiction of all news from other sources. The same correspondent states that Gen Ignatieff has been ordered to leave the Russian headquarters.

WAR REPORTS AND RUMORS

A Vienna despatch says the Russians have changed their tactics since the Plevna disaster, and now engage in regular modern [line] of battle in an order adopting the German method of supporting the lines.

In a recent engagement the Russian wounded have been found with explosive bullets in their bodies.

The Rio Grande City Jail Raiders

NEW YORK Aug 28 A San Antonio special announces that Benavides officially declares two of the Rio Grande City jail raiders extraditable and they will be surrendered to the United States. It is understood that nearly all the outlaws have been captured by Benavides. He dismissed from the Mexican army two officers who expressed an unwillingness to pursue the raiders. Col Guinda commanding the Mexicans at Guerrero, has issued a furious war proclamation summoning the Mexicans to rally against the perfidious colossus of the North.

TRUE ECONOMY is not in buying the lowest price articles. The best is cheapest. So with the fine cultivated and plantation grown spices imported by Messrs. Pinckney, Jackson & Co, of London and New York. I have just received a shipment of these goods and would specially invite the attention of all consumers to them. These spices are not only absolutely pure, but are without a doubt the finest ever imported into this country. I confidently recommend them as being really of unusual merit.

LOCAL MATTERS.

See what Kirkpatrick & Kinney have to say about fresh fish.

Yesterday potatoes sold from thirty to forty cents per bushel.

The Knights of Pythias will have a street drill at the close of the Lodge meeting this evening.

After ten years the citizens on Division street have succeeded in getting the road properly graveled.

Dr Jefferds and several others who a few days since made a visit to Crabtree's Neck, have returned.

Yesterday several vessels in the river had their flags at half mast out of respect at the death of the late Captain Elihu Hoxie of Brewer.

Last evening several persons out on the stream in a row boat discoursed some fine music which was listened to by a very appreciative audience lined along the bridge.

The municipal officers met Monday afternoon and signed the election warrants and decided to hold the election in Ward Seven in the second story of the school-house on Salem Court.

By reference to another column it will be seen that Misses P and A J Hammatt will on September 10th, open a school conducted on the Kindergarten system in the school house on the corner of Harlow and Spring streets.

The body of the little Murray child, drowned at Orono, Friday last, was found at the Red Bridge, Monday afternoon and taken home for burial. It was considerably bruised about the face, and they were obliged to have the funeral yesterday forenoon.

The Congregationalist Society of Sandy Point will hold a clam bake for the benefit of the church at French's beach on Thursday next. A boat will leave this city at 10 o'clock A M, returning at an early hour. As the society is in need of funds and many Bangor [people] have pleasant memories of [previous] days spent at that delightful summer resort there will doubtless be a good attendance from this city.

A CONCERT IN SEPTEMBER. We learn that Mr John L Hodsdon, Jr, who returned on Saturday from a sojourn in New York, has made arrangements to give a grand vocal and instrumental concert in Norombega Hall on the evening of Sept 15th. This entertainment has been projected in deference to the wishes of many friends who desire to hear Mr Hodsdon's fine voice which has been greatly improved by his course of study and practice in Europe, and he will be assisted by other talent to be announced hereafter.

A ATTEMPTED SUICIDE. Monday WE[illegible] Lowell, a man about sixty five years old living at West Great Works, entered his room and attempted to shoot himself with a gun which he had loaded and fired by the means of a stick, but the ball passed over his shoulder and entered the ceiling. Upon hearing the report of the gun, the man with whom he was boarding entered the room and took the gun away from Lowell who on being asked what he was doing, replied that he was in danger of being prosecuted for an attempt to commit rape on a French woman and tried to kill himself but did not succeed.

BAND EXCURSION. The excursion down river complimentary to the Bangor Band occurs to-day and the indications are that the occasion will prove a grand success. They will start from the steamboat wharf promptly at eight o'clock, stopping at all of the landings and on arrival at Fort Point there will be boat racing, tub racing, sack and Indian canoe races and other amusement. After this they will start for Northport and Belfast and on arrival at the latter place there will be a street parade and base ball match between the Ca[illegible] of that place and a picked nine from this city. At 8 o'clock in the evening there will be grand promenade concert and dance in Pierce's Hall. The price of the tickets has been placed within the reach of all, and we hope that the occasion will be largely attended.

SENTENCED FOR LIFE. Our readers doubtless remember the circumstances of the attempted robbery of one John B. Hoyt hailing from St John, N B, by James McAloon of this city, one night last December. McAloon, it will be remembered, was tried at the February term of the Supreme Court and convicted of making an assault with a dangerous weapon for the purpose of robbery, and his counsel filed exceptions which were overruled by the full bench, and in consequence the prisoner came up for sentence yesterday and was sentenced to imprisonment for life. He was indicted for two offences of this character but the second was not tried. Since his confinement in the County Jail he has been engaged in an attempt to escape and has said that he would have no use to complain if he was not sentenced for more than twenty years.

THE ST. JOHN'S COMMANDERY. Owing to the uncertainty of the weather yesterday morning there was not a very large party went down river on the excursion under the auspices of the St John's Commandery. At half past seven in the morning fifty Sir Knights in full uniform assembled at their armory, and headed by the Bangor Band, twenty pieces, they marched to the steamboat wharf, where they embarked on the C B Sanford for Belfast—While on the way down river the fog lifted and the sun shone out bright and the weather was all that could be asked for during the rest of the day. They arrived at Belfast at about half-past twelve, where after a street parade they marched to the American House where an elegant dinner was awaiting them. After dinner they again formed into line and after a short street parade they embarked on the boat for Castine. On arrival at that place the line was again formed and they made a fine parade, after which the Band gave a short concert. The excursionists then started for home, where they arrived at half past nine o'clock, all having thoroughly enjoyed the occasion.

MASONIC EXCURSION. The excursion under the auspices of Rising Virtue Lodge which takes place Thursday, September 13th, bids fair to be a very pleasant and successful affair. They will go on the C. B. Sanford and barge Clifford to Wesleyan Grove, where a mammoth clam bake will be served. The excursionists will be accompanied by the Band, and the members of the Fraternity with their families are cordially invited to participate in the occasion. The order of exercise for the day will be as follows: Masonic Hall will be opened at six o'clock in the morning for the reception of visiting brethren. The boat will leave the wharf promptly at 8 o'clock. The clam-bake will served immediately upon arriving at Northport. After which the entire company, headed by the Band will proceed to the grove. Here the meeting will be called to order by the Master of the Lodge. Prayer will then be offered by the Chaplain, Rev. Mr. Boyd, after which R. W. Charles I. Collamore, Dep. G. M., will deliver an historical address, which will be followed by responses from brethren representing the following lodges which have sprung from Rising Virtue Lodge; Felicity No 19, Bucksport, 1809, Penobscot No 39, Dexter, 1822, Piscataquis No 44, Milo, 1823, Meridian Splendor No. 49, Newport, 1826, Star in the East No 60, Oldtown, 1848, Mystic No. 65, Hampden, 1851, St Andrews No 83, Bangor, 1856. At the close of the responses W G W Snow will read an original poem written for the occasion. Tickets will only be sold to the members of the fraternity.

Mr Editor —What is the matter with the Bar goreans who have been rusticating at Crabtree's neck? In your Saturday's issue a wonderful account is given of a trip by water of two of your citizens, and now it is said that two more, a well known Boston runner, and a thread and needle man in a recent visit to this beautiful watering place saw an immense bald headed eagle, a whopper, as the vendor of tea and coffee said "as much as fifty miles high." Perhaps the extraordinary vision that can magnify an ordinary crow into an eagle "fifty miles high," and a sprinkling into an immersion and a mist into a fog and turn the week wrong end foremost will account for the yarn of the "Perilous Passage." The real facts of which are 1, There was no fog. 2 The route was perfectly familiar to the pilot. 3 The boat did not ship [a sea]. 4 Not one of the passengers was immersed in the briny deep. 5 No fire was built upon an island. 6 The boat arrived at Crabtree's before the time specified.

Possibly our friends will take off a foot of the "fifty miles eagle-crow," but Sunday School Scholars and Grocers will demand more of a discount than that.

Benefits of Agricultural Fairs

An Agricultural Fair is a great and profitable event, whether considered in relation to the general interest which it excites the large numbers whom it assembles the large area from which it gathers its products and its people, the important interests which it represents or the influence which flows from it. These annual fairs have a tendency to enlarge man's ideas of the resources and capabilities of the State.

When a man or boy comes on the Fair ground he says an agricultural writer, and finds three or four thousand persons assembled, he gets a larger and clearer idea of the millions they represent. Before he read and heard of them, now he begins to see and feel the reality. In the mall compass of a few acres he sees the products of the skill and enterprise and capacity of many square miles. He is shown the variety and richness of the soil and climate of his native State, at the him with a new power in [illegible]. Here he learns for the first time, how many kinds of products his [illegible] is capable of growing. Here he sees the perfection to which good seed and good culture may bring such products. Here he learns that common horses common cows, common grains, grasses and vegetables may by care and knowledge be developed into premium stock and farm product. He is taught to believe in better farming.

Another good result of Fairs is that they enrich men's minds as well as enlarge them. Before man attend a Fair their notions are apt to be circumscribed by the limits of their shops or farm fences. Here they see other besides home-bred notions embodied in success beyond their own. An [illegible] uniting in one mind becomes common property and is added to the available stock of knowledge in the community. The taste and manners are improved, kindly feelings are called out and strengthened and the heart and the life are made better by it. The mind is quickened, and men learn to observe and reason.

Fairs cultivate the taste. A floral and fine art hall is now an essential part of the programme. No one claims any exaggerated excellence for works put on temporary exhibition for they are not expected to possess such qualities, but they possess qualities for instruction and stimulus. Through such exhibitions of fine horses, cattle furniture, fruit, vegetables, flowers, fancy articles and pictures, the taste is both created and refined, and many rustic homes are better adorned year after year for the thoughts and feelings which spring up from a visit of children and adults to the Fair.

We would urge upon our readers the necessity of encouraging these institutions, they are the only means afforded for the practical dissemination of Agricultural truths. The press records their doings, but the practical observance of the current improvements of the day are only to be seen at these Fairs. Our citizens will find that the information and knowledge gained at these Fairs will make flowers sweeter, their walks pleasanter, and everything more full of interest and meaning. By attending these annual gatherings the farmer can add more to his stock of information than in his lonely experience he could learn in half a lifetime—by seeing and hearing what others have done he is stimulated to greater exertion and becomes a more useful, intelligent and happier man.

The Trustees of the Penobscot Agricultural Society last year, after due deliberation, taking into consideration the "hard times"—the exciting canvass for Presidential election, and the indebtedness of the Society on account of lack of sufficient patronage at former exhibitions, voted not to give an exhibition. This last spring, after holding several meetings and discussing the matter thoroughly, and hearing the most encouraging words from the most prominent agriculturists in the county, they concluded the matter of holding annual Fairs by this Society was of too much interest to every class in this community to be given up without another trial.

The Trustees pledge themselves that all business shall be conducted in the most economical and just manner; and if the farmers and others will take hold of the matter in earnest, an exhibition will be given in Orono, September 17, 18 and 19, which will be an honor to the County of Penobscot, the State, and Society.

At a meeting of the Trustees held in Orono, Aug. 23, 1877, the following named gentlemen were authorized to canvass for funds for the purpose of making the necessary preparations for giving the Fair:

Wm P. Wingate of Bangor, H K Robinson, Brewer, Stimson Peasley, Orono, F H Gregory, Hampden, W B Ward, [Ed]dington, Joseph Moore, Hermon, [Ed] Fenderson, Etna, A B Fawcett, [Gl]enburn, Charles W Howell, Holden.

We have no doubt our citizens, when called upon by the Committee will respond liberally.

THE STATE MUSTER

Gen Chamberlain and the Jameson Guards

Mr Editor —In your issue of this morning there appeared an article on the late Muster from Orono, in which article there is a doubt cast on the correctness of the informant of a former report concerning the Jameson Guards. I do not know who the writer of that article was, yet it seems to me that it does not come with authority from the Coburn Cadets, but as the correctness of my report has been doubted it is my duty to maintain my statements which I am prepared to do in a manner satisfactorily to all concerned.

I do not wish to take the least particle of my other [illegible] that which belongs strictly to the Guards and we do not wish any one to take ours. My report was made fair in [illegible] and if any one [did] [illegible] we cannot help it, yet it was not all said at that time. The facts are these: We went to Muster with one half of our company new men, we worked hard in I were rewarded in a manner we did not expect. Here being so many cadets on the field we were applauded on the review of Thur day and Friday for our [illegible] in [illegible] and our company [illegible] by officers of Division Headquarters [illegible] Saturday when Gen Chamberlain returned our flag that he had used at his head quarters during the week he gave us the highest compliment in his power to give, viz, that he considered the Jameson Guards the best drilled company in the field.

We are willing to abide by his opinion (which I think he has a perfect right to express) although some may think otherwise. We were applauded also on the streets of Augusta three times on our short march through that city and we are [en]tirely satisfied with the late Muster and with our [illegible] and we hope that [illegible] [illegible] from [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] just.

BANGOR May 11th 1877.

DR C F DRAKE—Sir: Last winter I came to see you, and at that time had given up all hopes of ever receiving help but my friends insisted on my coming to see you. My disease was Hematuria of the Kidney and in four short weeks I was entirely cured.

MANY who are suffering from the effects of the warm weather and are debilitated, are advised by physicians to take moderate amounts of whisky two or three times during the day. In a little while those who adopt this advice frequently increase the number of "drinks" and in time become confirmed inebriates. A beverage which will not create thirst for intoxicating liquor, and which is intended especially for the benefit of debilitated persons, whether at home or abroad is Dr Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic. Containing the juices of many medicinal herbs this preparation does not create an appetite for the intoxicating cup. The nourishing and the life-supporting properties of many valuable natural productions contained in it and well known to medical men have a most strengthening influence. A single bottle of the Tonic will demonstrate its valuable qualities. For debility arising from sickness, over exertion or from any cause whatever, a wineglassful of Sea Weed Tonic taken after meals will strengthen the stomach and create an appetite for wholesome food. To all who are about leaving their homes, we desire to say that the excellent effects of Dr. Schenck's seasonable remedies, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills, are particularly evident when taken by those who are injuriously affected by a change of water and diet. No person should leave home without taking a supply of these safeguards along. For sale by all druggists.

THE OLD CLOCK AND I.

BY NATHANIEL HAYNES.

When we were young as I in our prime,
We started on the race of time,
Myself, my wife, my clock together,
Through summer's heat and frosty weather

'Twas on a lovely day in June,
When Nature smiled in floral bloom,
Ambition, industry and strife—
Were emotions in my early life

While traveling up to Fortune's height,
Misfortune came,—up at our Light,
Often stepp'd down on lower plain
And tried its dazzling goal again.

Mid lights and shades and hopes and fears
We've all had on through many years,
Some the most sorrow filled the page
From archive life that ripen'ng age.

Now in this new year, seventy seven,
The old clock speaks,—Just struck eleven;
Fifty two years I've timed you through
The pilgrimage we had in view,

Now we'll go back to days of yore,
When first we met on cottage floor,
You, the sparkling eyes and youthful grace
Reflected in my mirrored face.

Oh! perfect you were and fair and correct,
Now old and graying growing homely,
My hands are stealth, my face is fair,
But heaven and earth need repair.

My pendulum is still a swinging,
Still my bell keeps a ringing,
My dial plate is still repeating
In concert with your own heart's beating.

I will say this to our relief,
My vital power will prove you,
For when the chord that sounds a time
Parted I'm a breathless one;

Another clock I've got in the house
Without a wood upon its case,
Says there is a heavenly start
Nature is more true than art

Then we'll be cheerful—content,
The opening of the year's first quarter,
Then you'll grow pale and fade to dust,
The elements that form of your rest!

The clock is tale and ceased to swing—what is before,
Though still [illegible]
I think I see a silver arch near in the western sky,
Suggestive of the Father to know—my time to leave.

THE GIRL FARMERS.

Dorothea Alice Shepherd and Louise Berney vs. Fate

Yes, that was the way the case stood when we were making the fight.

We often wonder now that we dared. But success is encouraging. Our deeds gave us strength to attempt them.

I suppose Jane and Silas thought we were very well off as we were—Louise as housekeeper and in a family where she was "as good as anybody," and I as district schoolma'am, at least. I knew that in the first of the struggle the sympathy was all on the wrong side. But a pity that taking sides! that we have succeeded, but there were days and days when—well, never mind! it is little matter since we have succeeded, have accomplished nearly everything which they predicted we never could do. We wanted a home, we wanted to be our own mistress, we wanted a living that should be independent of the likes, dislikes and caprices of others. We read up this subject of labor, talked over every branch we had known women permitted to try. We turned from all the traditional ladylikeness of our sex; we knew these avocations were crowded.

But the day, when a good plan can be tried to every test but self-seemed impossible, that the hand should be capital sufficient, turned up.

A maiden sister of Louise, who as housekeeper had saved up eight thousand dollars, died and left the same target to us, as Louise was pleased to say. And one day soon after, she and down the New York Tribune, and said, "Let us go west!"

It was meaningless jest, but it was supreme to blow the verdict of a vague fancy of some remote happy thought which I suppose many other women have tried to clamber up by.

"Lou, why not?" I exclaimed at once. "Why not go west and buy a lot of land and raise small fruits for the market?"

In a few moments we talked ourselves brave and eager, not so much on account of the happiness the picture presented itself to us—as an idyl pastoral, but single. "That would be home and independence beyond any of the other plans," said Lou. "Just you and I, and nobody to feed with the Divine Nature."

Accordingly we came up into Michigan, to reconnoiter, looking the most possible house our headquarters. We proceeded to "look land" like other master capitalists; that is, colonel Rapers, the land took us in his light wagon to see every farm that was for sale within ten miles. And it was useless—we little midgets to go tripping over magnificent estates of two or three hundred acres, and saying about with only a thousand dollars in our pockets!

Of course, we could not buy them, and we did think, so long as we were "only two girls," there was no need of such wide spread consternation which we finally made our choice. However, Lou and I were of one mind. We had resolved to keep ourselves to the plan of mixed farming, and when the whole of that rubbishly neglected thirty-five acres was offered to us by its non-resident owner for a sum quite inside our means, instead of laughing up on account of its size, we felt it to be a bit of outspoken friendliness on the part of Providence, and to the astonishment of the neighborhood we bought it without delay.

On the way home from the village we again passed our place. John rather maliciously asked if we would not like to look at it "as a whole," and stopped the team.

As a whole, it was a narrow, hilly stretch, outlined by a weak skeleton of a fence, a forbidding surface of stubble ground and wild turf, the distant hill-tops crowned with tall maple trees. There was not a spring of clover on the place, and though there was an old brown house and barn, there was not an orchard tree, nor a reminiscence of a garden.

With the strange new sense of security which only the possession of a bit of real estate can give one, we flitted away to prepare to come again in the spring with the first robin. I went back to cousin Abner's and hired out, not to her, but to cousin John, while Louise took up her old business of housework at a wealthy farmer's near us—cheerily, both of us. We had paid for our farm, and there remained to us funds for the purchase of a horse, wagon and cow. Lou, being supposed coolest in case of fire, took charge of the precious deed, and the money, promising to add thereto before spring, fifty dollars, and that will buy your clover seed, Dolly."

"But you know you believe in clover, Lou, and several cows and sheep!" I did not fancy shouldering alone the responsibility of my theories.

"Oh, yes, dear, Dolly, if you are certain you do."

I was pretty certain.

Lou had her two dollars each week. What I earned was twelve dollars per month, experience and wealth. Of course I wanted to keep the sick girl in the house. But at the outset I made for myself some short dresses. I am small and slender, and it was not at all such an outrage upon the aesthetics of dress as you may fancy—and thus lightly and convulsively attired and beginning moderately I worked out of doors every day with cousin John and the boys.

I found everything hard, but nothing impossible.

Little Rob and I cut about half a dozen acres of corn unassisted. Unassisted I husked the same, bound my bundles, and well, too. At first I was greatly discouraged over this same "shidding," as all women are; for cousin said he couldn't sacrifice too much to our experiment, and that he wouldn't have me in the husking unless I could bind my stalks as I went. I promised, but it too my hands cruelly, and then the bundles upon which I had spent so much time would fall to pieces while I was carrying and setting them up. But one day, when I was at quite a loss what to do, I espied two German women in the neighboring field occupied like myself, and I climbed the fence and called upon them, as very properly I might, they being the later comers. They, I found, had installed themselves on women's proverbial wit; they showed me some ball of coarse twine.

"Go pay yourself some balls of leetle rope, and not tear your hands mit twisting stalks and marsh hays. It do take him more time to twist than it do to earn de leetle rope."

My cough ceased. The sunlight of the beautiful, vaporous Indian summer weather, and the sweet air proved an once a balm and a tonic for my irritated stomach, and, together with the exercise, invigorated my appetite. I used to run about to dinner as hungry as the boys, and dark gleefully "like a wolf" in Janet's yard to show her how ravenous I was, until at last the hired man—and old Scotchman—said one day to John, who was lecturing me, "Read, lads! let the lass alone; give her oatmeal patriotick for her breakfast, and hot water, then to likes work can work their till dinner."

So they can. I know and I brew that. A cup of strong tea, well creamed coffee, with a dish of oatmeal, mush cooked with cream and sifted sugar, has been our daily breakfast for years. The old Scotchman's hint has been a fortune to us in the matter of solid muscle and healthy thought.

While I grew brown and strong out in the sunny fields, I was daily learning my business, working alongside cousin John. I learned the cosy ways the women's way, of holding the plough and turning a furrow, and it was a proud time for the boys. Behold I were trusted to plough on the potatoes when I potato-harvest time. I asked my station "at first" had the corn, and the same thus to it myself to carry out our enterprise.

Cousin John paid me my wages by going over to our farm and ploughing up every rod of it save the door-yard and stood for the protested against the nonsense of "ploughing," but I insisted, talking of west-working and the advantage of the "wheel-strong girl" in the office matter. So finally I was allowed to make a wheel-strong girl" in the office matter, and the land so then I would not make a wheel-strong girl" in the office matter, and the land so then I would not make a wheel-strong girl" in the office matter, and the land so then I would not
